As part of the 2025 International Education Week activities, this panel captures and shares with audience members information on how participation in the Expedition/Embajadores program has changed their views on the world. The panel consists of students from Queretaro, Mexico, who visited San Antonio, and students from San Antonio who visited Queretaro, Mexico. They will share their first-hand insights and experiences, empowering audience members with the information they need to decide whether to participate in future foreign mobility programs. They will articulate how the experience enabled skill acquisition that is becoming increasingly essential in today's world, empowering the audience to make informed decisions about their future educational journey. The target audience for this event is students who could be potential participants in future mobility programs.
