WORK SCHEDULE

Work Hours

A maximum of 38 hours per pay period, or 19 hours per week (NO EXCEPTIONS), is allowed based on financial need determined by FAFSA Submission Summary (FSS).

The work schedule is determined between the supervisor and the work-study student. The immediate supervisor is encouraged to initiate the work-schedule discussion on or before the first day of work by asking the student about their class schedule, upcoming events and other related educational obligations that may arise during the semester.

Students are not permitted to work during established, assigned, or scheduled class times or events. If hours are clocked during such periods, written justification from the student, supervisor and class professor will be required and must be submitted for approval to campus Student Financial Aid Office contact.

Requests for any type of leave should be made to the supervisor or designated staff in advance, if possible, or the department policy and procedure governing such action must be followed.

Beginning and Ending Dates

Work-Study students may begin work on the first day of classes of the semester, if eligibility is met. The final day of work each semester is the last day of the academic semester. Only students with secured enrollment for the subsequent semester may be considered for employment for the following semester.

Meal and Comfort Breaks

Work-study students are eligible for a fifteen (15) minute break and a thirty (30) minute unpaid lunch break for every four (4) hours worked. An hour unpaid lunch break for students who work eight (8) hours or more in one day. Supervisors are to clarify meal and break times that meet the needs of both the agency and the students. Students may not work more than ten (10) hours in one day shift.

Pay Rate

The hourly rate for all work-study jobs is $16.78 per hour.

Enrollment

All students must maintain enrollment in at least six (6) credit hours at their home college. These enrollment hours must all be listed within the students Degree Plan (CPOS/POS).

EXPECTATIONS OF WORK-STUDY STUDENTS & EMPLOYER

Work-study students working on campus or with an ACD support office are expected to maintain a high level of professionalism. Your supervisor should establish and set forth all expectations for their work study students. This is to include work attire, performance, call-out process ETC.... Below are general expectations regarding workplace etiquette and behaviors that most employers expect to employ new hires to exhibit.

Acceptable behavior

As an employee of an on-campus department of support office, students, staff and visitors will view a work-study student as a professional who represents the department. Self-monitoring of behavior is critical. Behavior that is acceptable in other settings, such as those in a social setting are not always appropriate and may not be suitable in the workplace.

Appropriate Dress for Your Work Setting

Supervisor should discuss expectations on dress code and grooming (including hairstyle) when initially meeting with Student(s) to discuss work schedule. Remain mindful that work-study students represent the department.

Attendance

The departments and the students served depend on a regular schedule, making regular attendance at work is a priority. Punctuality, arriving at work and returning from scheduled breaks are critical for the operation of the department. Any deviation from the regularly scheduled hours must be discussed prior to the change of hours with the supervisor. Explaining an absence or reason for tardiness after the event is not acceptable professional behavior.

The supervisor recognizes that work-study students at times might need to deviate from their work schedule to get extra studying completed or to finish a class project. These requests must be discussed with the supervisor with sufficient notice, at least a week or several days beforehand.

If you are going to be absent due to illness or emergency, you must speak with your supervisor or designee at least a half hour before the start of the scheduled work time.

Confidentiality

Work-study students should avoid trying to discover information not needed to complete a work-related task. Respect students' and co-workers' privacy by not reading faxes or email, computer screens, or mail that are not shared. As a member of a department, refrain from discussing students', individuals, cases or sensitive information outside of the department. Additionally, department documents, files, and other written materials should not be taken from the premises.

Alamo Colleges District

Federal Work-Study Program

Work-study students should refrain from posting photographs of students or of themselves at work with other students or photographs of co-workers on social media.

Language

In the workplace, students need to be thoughtful of language as they interact with co-workers, visitors and students. Profanity is not appropriate regardless of the situation. Writing and speaking in complete sentences prevents miscommunication. Always address co-workers, visitors and students by their last name, unless invited to refer to them by their first name.

Work-Study Student should remain respectful of others preferred pronouns and share self-preferred pronouns.

Personal Business

Take care of personal business, such as making or taking personal phone calls, texting messages, or sending emails before arriving at work or during your breaks, away from co-workers, guests or students.

Professional Relationships

As a Work-Study student, one of the students' objectives is to meet and get to know professionals who may later offer a job, refer the student to another place of employment or who may agree to serve as a reference. Every effort should be made to impress the professionals with whom the student makes contact. Work to build and maintain a healthy working relationship with individuals at work.

Supervision

Work-Study students are required to always have supervision and should always know how to contact their supervisor if guidance or information is needed. A Work-Study student should not be left physically unattended or placed "in charge" of a department. Federal Work-Study students must be supervised only by full-time staff; part-time staff are not permitted to supervise under any circumstances.

If you, as a Work-Study student, are ever left unsupervised or asked to perform duties assigned to full-time employees, please contact the Work-Study Financial Aid Advisor at your home campus immediately.

Tardiness

Students are expected to arrive on time to their work-study assignment. If you are running late to work, call to notify the supervisor at least a half-hour before the scheduled start time, or as soon as possible.

Office Updates

Work study work and assignments for the Fall 202 and Spring 202 semesters will continue to operate via-in-person, remote and hybrid work. Supervisors must ensure students have all access and technology equipment needed to complete their assignments. Supervisors will establish a method to ensure students are supervised and work is accounted for while students are working remotely.

Alamo Colleges District Federal Work-Study Program

Work-Study Students who will be working in person or hybrid are not allowed to work in the following capacities:

- Used to set up or take down event equipment

Federal Policy: Limitations & Conditions of Employment – Volume 6 – The Campus-Base Program/Chapter 2 Federal Student Aid Handbook

FWS positions must not involve constructing, operating, or maintaining any part of a building used for religious worship or sectarian instruction. In determining whether any FWS employment will violate this restriction, a school should consider the purpose of the part of the facility in which the work will take place and the nature of the work to be performed. If the part of the facility in which the student will work is used for religious worship or sectarian instruction, the work cannot involve construction, operation, or maintenance responsibilities. If that part of the facility is not being used for religious worship or sectarian instruction, the school should make sure that any work the student will perform meets general employment conditions and that other limitations are not violated.

Timesheet

Timesheets are used to record the hours and number of hours worked. A Web Time Entry (WTE) submission via your ACES is required for a paycheck to be generated after each pay period. Work-study students must complete an electronic timesheet on a daily basis to avoid misreporting of actual hours worked. The completed WTE timesheet must be submitted within two (2) business days at the end of a pay period. The department supervisor will review for accuracy and approve the students' WTE submission before the deadline of each pay period.

Failure to submit timesheets on time will result in your department temporarily being suspended from the Work-Study program.

Web Time Entry (WTE)

The method of recording work hours is an online system known as the Web-Time Entry (WTE) Program.

Work-study students will access their time sheets by following these steps:
