COMPUTER SCIENCE

“Keep away from people who try to belittle your ambitions. Small people always do that, but the really great make you feel that you, too, can become great.”

– Mark Twain

Anthony Zinsmeyer is from La Coste and is currently a dedicated student and part-time employee. Although Anthony has always had a fascination with technology, it wasn't until his high school years at Medina Valley High School did he realize he could turn that fascination into a potential career.

After graduating high school, Anthony started pursuing a STEM career in computer science. It is challenging to go to school and work at the same time. Anthony did get frustrated many times, but that never stopped him. When he was at the point where he could take no more, Anthony would take a breather and return again with his mind collected and with greater drive and energy than he had before.

After getting his associate degree, Anthony plans to transfer to University of Texas at San Antonio to continue his education. Anthony hopes that this education will give him the power to give even more back to the community that has helped him on the path to success.
