Student Success

SPC Student Featured in Article about HBCUs as Tech Pipelines

St. Philip's College (SPC) student, Dione Deleon, was interviewed for a Business Journal article about the role of two-year Historically Black Colleges and Universities (HBCUs) in creating pipelines to technology fields. Deleon worked as a social worker for a decade before deciding to go back to college to learn cybersecurity. SPC President Dr. Adena Williams Loston is also quoted in the piece. <https://www.bizjournals.com/sanantonio/news/2022/04/08/2-year-hbcus-tech-talent-pipeline.html>

SPC Child Development Center Celebrates Fiesta with Two Parades

St. Philip's College (SPC) Child Development Center celebrated Fiesta by participating in the CultureFest Parade of Flags with the assistance of parents, grandparents, teachers and SPC Vocational Nursing student volunteers. The CDC also hosted the annual Fiesta Shoebox Parade. CDC children and parents made shoebox floats together and parents were invited to watch the shoebox parade via Zoom.

Performance Excellence

SPC Students Compete in HBCU Battle of the Brains

St. Philip's College (SPC) students Darius Martin, Vanessa Quinones, Richard Garcia, and Jorge Saldivar attended the HBCU Battle of the Brains Competition in Austin on March 8-13 with Dr. Celestino Valentin. SPC was the only community college to participate and the students gained experience and represented the college.
